SECURITY COUNCIL SITS UNDER NIXON

He Presides for Second Time Since President's Illness —Dulles Visit Likely

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Vice President Richard M. Nixon presided today at a meeting of the National Security Council.

The Security Council meeting was the second presided over by Mr. Nixon since President Eisenhower's illness. The statutory mmebers present were: Mr. Nixon, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, and Arthur S. Flemming, Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization. Other cabinet members present were George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, and Herbert Brownell Jr., Attorney General.

Others included Harold E. Stassen, Special Assistant to the President for Disarmament; Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Percival F. Brundage, Acting Director of the Bureau of the Budget; Val Peterson, Civil Defense Administrator; and Lieut. Gen. C. P. Cabell, Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mr. Nixon refused to talk about his flying trip to Denver aSturday to see the President.

"The announcement speaks for itself," Mr. Nixon said in an interview outside the White House. Their meeting will be the first since the Prseident was stricken with a moderate heart attack Sept. 24.

Dulles May Follow

It was understood that Mr. Nixon's visit was likely to be followed some time next week with one by Secretary Dulles, who is preparing for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Geneva Oct. 27.

Mr. Dulles will see the President before a meeting with Republican and Democratic Congressional leaders in Washington Oct. 20, it was said. Mr. Dulles is expected to leave for Geneva Oct. 21 or 22.

The State Department confirmed that Mr. Dulles had invited key members of Congress to a briefing on allied plans for the Geneva parley, the first major diplomatic conference since the President became ill.

In effect, Mr. Dulles is taking over the bipartisan briefing that probably would have been held by the President before the Geneva conference. The President has held similar meetings with Congressional leaders on foreign affairs and on domestic problems. A briefing was held by the President before and after the Big Four "Summit" meeting the President attended at Geneva in July.

George to Attend

Heading the list of those invited by Mr. Duplles are:

Senators Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, and William F. Knowland, Senate minority leader; Representatives Sam Rayburn, Democrat of Texas and Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Joseph W. Martin Jr., House Republican leader.

Another key figure will be Senator Walter F. George, Democrat of Georgia, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Senator George and President Eisenhower frequently conferred on foreign affairs.

Henry Suydam, State Department press officer, said Senator George intended to attend the briefing to be held at the State Department. He was uncertain how many of the other leaders would be able to ttend, however.

In addition to the leaders of the Senate and the House, those invited include ranking members of the Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Appropriations Committees.

The Foreign Ministers' Conference of France, Great Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States will discuss European security, disarmament and reunification of Germany among other topics.

Nixon Is Silent

Vice President Nixon parried all question on his trip to Denver with "I prefer not to comment." He said a schedule had not yet been worked out but taht he expected to fly back to Washington either Saturday night or some time Sunday.
